

DAWNcil Supports “What Does Accessibility Mean to Me” Awareness Week October 18-23, 2021

When you hear the word ‘accessibility’, what do you think of?

Accessibility means something different to everyone. We all have different experiences, challenges, abilities, and thoughts regarding the world of inclusion, whether at home or in the workplace.

DAWNcil is proud to celebrate “What Does Accessibility Mean to Me” awareness week, a key date in our calendar to get everyone talking and learning about accessibility, diversity, and inclusion. October 18th- 22nd, 2021 marks the first ‘What Does Accessibility Mean to Me’ awareness week with Recite Me, where we come together and recognize the differences within our communities to support a diverse range of people.

DAWNcil’s mission is to provide support to persons with disabilities throughout their lifespan so they can achieve their highest level of independence in their community.

Everyone deserves the freedom to live a barrier-free life. 1 in every 5 people has a disability that may impact an individual’s access to information, services, experiences, and opportunities.

Together we can give everyone a voice to express their understanding and thoughts on what accessibility means to them. This starts by creating awareness on an individual or organizational level, helping to bring the workplace together, empower individuals, and improve inclusion. Join the journey to an accessible world.

To join the conversation on what accessibility means to you join us on our Facebook page a create your own posts using the hashtag #AccessibilityToMe